Boston, Dec. 29, 1861.

Dear Johnson:

It will be quite as convenient for me to lecture on the 14th as on the 7th. But, on further consideration, you may come to the conclusion that, for the present, your city has had quantum suff. of lecturing. If so, do not hesitate to omit my lecture, by simply announcing that it has been postponed — making no promise of its delivery at any future time.

I am sorry that the time appointed for our friend Filton's lecture (so near Christmas) was damaging to the attendance; yet I hope he had enough present to make it worth while to address them, and to give him some remuneration.

Has dear little Carrie recovered from her illness?

Your attached friend,
Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

Oliver Johnson.
